Special Collections Library Renamed Bruce Peel Special Collections Library

"Hey, you on the fourth shelf. Yes, you. Can you flick that spot of dust off your neighbor, please. The one to your right. That's it. And while you're at it, straighten your spine. We have to put on the ritz because our old friend Bruce Peel is going to have the Special Collections Library named after him tonight. Okay, is everyone on the edge of the shelf? Let's be anticipatory but calm. I think I hear someone coming...yes, it's Peter Freeman going over last minute details. Ten hut!"

There was a certain amount of bable in the Bibliography Room of Rutherford Library North on 12 October but round about 7:30 p.m. the volumes generously bore silent witness to the dedication of the Bruce Peel Special Collections Library. Good words were being spoken to an assemblage of some 100 invited guests; the printed word would receive its due when Vice-President J.G. Kaplan and Chancellor Savaryn unveiled the Bruce Peel Special Collections Library plaque, when the guests inspected the facility renamed for the Librarian to the University of Alberta from 1955 to 1982, and in the days ahead when researchers get on with their business.

The name change for Special Collections was not effected by Mr. Peel's work as an administrator but because of his status as "a bookman of the first rank, whose exploration of Canada in libraries all over the world resulted in his unique Bibliography of the Prairie Provinces."

Accolades were directed Mr. Peel's way by Peter Freeman, Director of Libraries; Guy Sylvestre, former Director of the National Library of Canada; Messrs. Kaplan and Savaryn; and keynote speaker Richard Landon,

Head of the University of Toronto's Thomas Fisher Library. In addition, James Forrest, Department of English and a habitué of Special Collections, presented four books in honor of retiring faculty, 1982 and 1983.

For his part Mr. Peel was self-effacing, meting out generous portions of credit for the University Library's development to others and referring to A.C. Rutherford's gift of Western Canadiana volumes, the first collection of Special Collections.

Bibliography of the Prairie Provinces says much for Mr. Peel. In the program for the dedication ceremony it was cited as "a noble work," one that "reveals his impassioned esteem for the scholarly value of hard-to-find materials, whether sumptuous rare books or humble immigration pamphlets."

In describing the Library as a suitable monument to the dedicated career of Bruce Peel as a bookman, Richard Landon said Special Collections are founded on bibliophilia, "rare and medium rare." In order for them to flourish, conservation and preservation must be practiced faithfully, the collecting effort must be maintained and the various collections must be available for use. The foregoing would seem to present few problems for John Charles, Head of Special Collections. The Bruce Peel Special Collections Library in B-7 Rutherford South (the area, which formerly housed the Extension Library, was revamped by John Graham Architects) is handsomely outfitted with brass and fumed oak and has an "environmental package" whereby the humidity and the temperature are regulated with care. A conservation laboratory is used not infrequently. Mr. Charles keeps an ear to the ground regarding the addition of books/collections (there are relatively few gifts or donations, most of the volumes are purchased from rare book dealers who are familiar with the Library's strengths and wants), and the "residents" of Special Collections are available for consultation. Joining them are the books turned over by Dr. Forrest on behalf of the Friends of the

The reception area and mezzanine.

University. The titles are: Manual of Outpost Duties, with Instructions for the Defence of Detached Houses (written by Major George T. Denison, Jr. and published in Toronto in 1866); The Art of Swimming...with Advice for Bathing (written by M. Thevenot and published in London in 1764); a rare first edition of Goethe's Versuch die Metamorphose der Pflanzen (published in Gotha in 1790); and Christina Rossetti's Goblin Market (published in London in 1893).

Denison's slim volume is a rare Canadian military volume. The Art of Swimming is a translation from the French, and the first book on swimming in the English language. It includes 43 copper-plate cuts of "great charm." The Goethe book is regarded as a key work on botanical metamorphosis. The edition of Goblin Market is one of 160 copies on large paper of this "beautifully illustrated version of a great Victorian poem." Michael Wilcox, Canada's finest binder and one of the master binders period, designed and executed a unique binding of dark green leather, with inlays of red, wine, beige and mustard.

Richard Landon also gifted Special Collections with An Impartial Account of Divers Remarkable Proceedings...relating to the horrid Popish Plot, London, 1679. The volume will complement the collection by and about John Bunyan and his times.

A Brace of Exhibitions

Two dedicatory exhibitions have been organized by Special Collections—"The Gregory Javitch Collection: Two Aspects," and "Sing, Heavenly Muse!"

The Javitch Collection is said to be the foremost private collection of rare materials on North and South American Indians in this country. Gregory Javitch (1898-1980) was born in Russia and later lived in France, Palestine and France again. In 1950, he and his family emigrated to Montreal where he resided for the rest of his life. In the early 1960s, his burgeoning interest in the history of the North American Indians coupled with a love of nature (he was knowledgeable about reforestation and land reclamation and planted thousands of trees during his lifetime) precipitated the gathering of volumes with special strengths in Indian warfare and linguistics.

Mr. Javitch died on 3 November 1980, having already offered his collection to this University. Bruce Peel, knowing full well the significance of the collection, was a key figure in the negotiations which saw half of the collection donated and the other half purchased by the University.

The exhibit contains rare books from the 16th and 17th centuries documenting the exploration of the New World. The third volume of Ramusio's Delle Navigationi et Viaggi is open to the first illustration of Montreal. Eusebius Caesarensis's Chronicon contains the first printed reference to Canadian Indians.

"Sing, Heavenly Muse!" underlines the excellent collection of poetry in the Library. The visitor will find, for example, a rather large volume of Walt Whitman's Leaves of Grass printed by Edwin and Robert Grabhorn of San Francisco that is regarded by many bibliophiles as "the most beautiful splendidly proportioned book ever printed in America." The first illustrated edition of Paradise Lost is out front as are volumes by Tennyson and Keats, and a selection of Canadians which includes E.J. Pratt, Archibald Lampman, an early poem by Margaret Atwood and some manuscripts in Dorothy Livesay's hand.

The exhibitions will continue until January at which time other aspects of the Bruce Peel Special Collections Library will be showcased. □

UAYs to Consider 'Gender Role Development'

Ever wondered what research indicates about the differences in brain development between males and females, about whether these differences are sufficient to account for the low representation of females in the sciences, about what proportion of the differences are genetic and what proportion are learned?

These questions will be discussed at the next meeting of the UAYs (University of Alberta Women in Science and Engineering). A panel made up of Linda Fedigan, Anthropology; M. Anne Hall, Physical Education and Sports Studies; and Heidi Kass, Secondary Education, will speak on the topic "Gender Role Development: Biological, Educational and Social Perspectives." Sheila Bertram, Library Science, will be in the chair.

The meeting will be held Monday, 29 October, in SUB-034 (lower level meeting room). There will be a pot-luck supper at 5 p.m. with the panel discussion beginning at 6:30 p.m. All interested persons are welcome to attend.

For more information, telephone Professor Bertram, 432-3292; Liz Stinson, Zoology, 432-4162; or Margaret-Ann Armour, Chemistry, 432-5566. □

Future of the West is Topic of Western Economic Transition Conference

The collapse of Alberta's "boom" has put the province's economic future in a precarious position. Should the West depend on its natural resources? Should the West diversify in order to attain a steady, growing economy, and, if so, how?

These are just some of the issues to be discussed at the Western Economic Transition Conference, 8 and 9 November on campus. The conference, sponsored by the Department of Economics and the Economic Council of Alberta, will feature people from Western universities and research institutions, representatives of private industry, the provincial governments and members of the Economic Council of Canada staff.

Among the topics are "Competing Models of Western Growth: Continued Specialization in Resources or Greater Diversification?" "International Trade: The Pacific Rim, American Markets and the West;" "Natural Resource Industries in Western Growth and Development: A Constant, Increasing or Diminishing Role?" and "Prospects and Policies for Western Canadian Growth."

Representatives of this University will include Peter Meekison, Melville McMillan, Bev Dahlby, Mike Percy, Bruce Wilkinson, Mel Lerohl, Michele and Terry Veeman, Allan Warrack, Roger Smith and Brian Scarfe.

Premier Peter Lougheed, Advanced Education Minister Dick Johnston and Mayor Lawrence Decore will likely attend.

The conference will take place in Lister Hall, 87 Avenue and 116 Street. The registration fee of $125 includes conference papers, materials, two luncheons and a reception and dinner. Conference rates of $62 per day are also available. Reservations must be made by 14 October, and there will be no refunds after 26 October. A limited number of rooms have been reserved at the Westin Hotel.

Melville McMillan, Department of Economics (432-3406), is the individual to consult for further information. □

The ad might have read: "Wanted, centre for 1,650 students from 102 countries. Close to University of Alberta. Willing to do various repairs. Excellent academic references." There is, however, no need to place the request because the International Student Centre was officially opened on 1 October (here, President Horowitz and ISU member Vidya Thakur help turn a house into a home). The idea of having such a facility was batted about for some time but things came to a head early in August 1983 when Dr. Horowitz met with a group of international students and challenged them to develop a firm proposal for a Centre. They did their homework; Peter Miller, Dean of Student Services, did the "necessary lobbying"; and the Office of the Vice-President (Facilities and Services) pulled a few strings. The latest University facility, located at 11023 90 Avenue, will be used for seminars and meetings and for informal social gatherings.
